Sentences, sentences, sentences...

Activities & Games!

We have been practising using adjectives in our writing to help describe things to the reader.

1. Play a feely bag game. Choose some objects with interesting textures and have a go at describing them to a partner, whilst your hand is feeling them in the bag!
2. Play a barrier game. One person has an object and the second person has to guess what it is, they are not allowed to see the object. The 'describer' will have to use some awesome adjectives to help the guesser out!

We have been thinking about what type of words verbs are.

1. You could play charades with verbs. Write out as many verbs as you can, then take it in turns to act out the verb to each other.

Punctuation

Each week, have a look in your reading book. What punctuation marks can you find? How do they make a difference to how you read a sentence?

Find a sentence with an exclamation mark or a question mark then practise reading the sentence out loud, with good expression, use the punctuation to help you.

Now have a go at writing a sentence with either an exclamation mark or a question mark in it.

Wonderful websites

Alien Punctuation is a fun game to practise punctuating sentences.

Balloon words will challenge your knowledge of connectives.

Noun Explorer will help you to explore word types.

Adjective Adventure will test your use of adjectives.

What type of word am I?

Can you be a detective?

First, you will need to find a book. Your job is to go on a hunt for nouns, verbs and adjectives in the sentences. You could write all the nouns in blue, the verbs in green and the adjectives in red. Now see if you can jumble up the words to improve the sentences!
