Remote Learning

To the children,

Hello!

Another big thank you again for those of you who have got in touch via the new email. If you haven't emailed us yet, then please do. You don't have to submit any work unless you want to; you could just say hi or ask some questions. It's lovely to hear from you and we reply to all messages.

This week, we have some different videos for you to watch. Your parents should receive a letter through the school office with a link to a video of Coleridge memories for you to enjoy with your families. We hope you enjoy these videos!

We hope you like the activities this week. There is a new Wider Curriculum sheet with a whole range of new activities for you to have a go at. Make yourself a plan to complete these activities; they don't all have to be completed at once!

You should also have received a message about the mobile library service that we are offering. If you have finished your book or are short of something to read, you can email year6@coleridgeprimary.net to request a new book. Simply tell us what books you have enjoyed and we can recommend some reading for you. We will then bring a book to your door for you to enjoy! Don't worry, we will do this as part of our daily exercise and we enjoy getting out and about.

Stay safe and have a lovely week!

Miss Edge, Mr Grimadell, Miss Henry and Mr Skrein

To the parents,

We hope you are all safe and well. Please encourage children to send us some work or a short message to keep in touch; we will respond to their messages.

For week 7 remote learning, there are new English, Maths and Wider Curriculum sheets this week.

The English grammar focus this week is on active and passive voice. This can be a little bit tricky but there is a BBC lesson to help out. We have also included the start of a story for the children to finish, which we are excited about seeing the results of! Maths is all about finding percentages. The teaching videos are really useful but please encourage your child to get in touch if they find it tricky.

The new mobile library service is already becoming popular and we have begun to make deliveries of books for children to read. As mentioned in the letter to the children, just send an email to year6@coleridgeprimary.net to receive recommendations and to book a delivery slot. Don't worry, we're nowhere near as popular as Ocado right now, so we can usually deliver pretty swiftly!

We are all missing our classes and looking forward to seeing everyone back at school.
