For a moment, Ben thought he was dreaming. He wasn't dreaming! The magic watch had taken him somewhere. 'Where am I?' thought Ben. He stood motionless. The strap of the magic watch was dangling from his mouth.

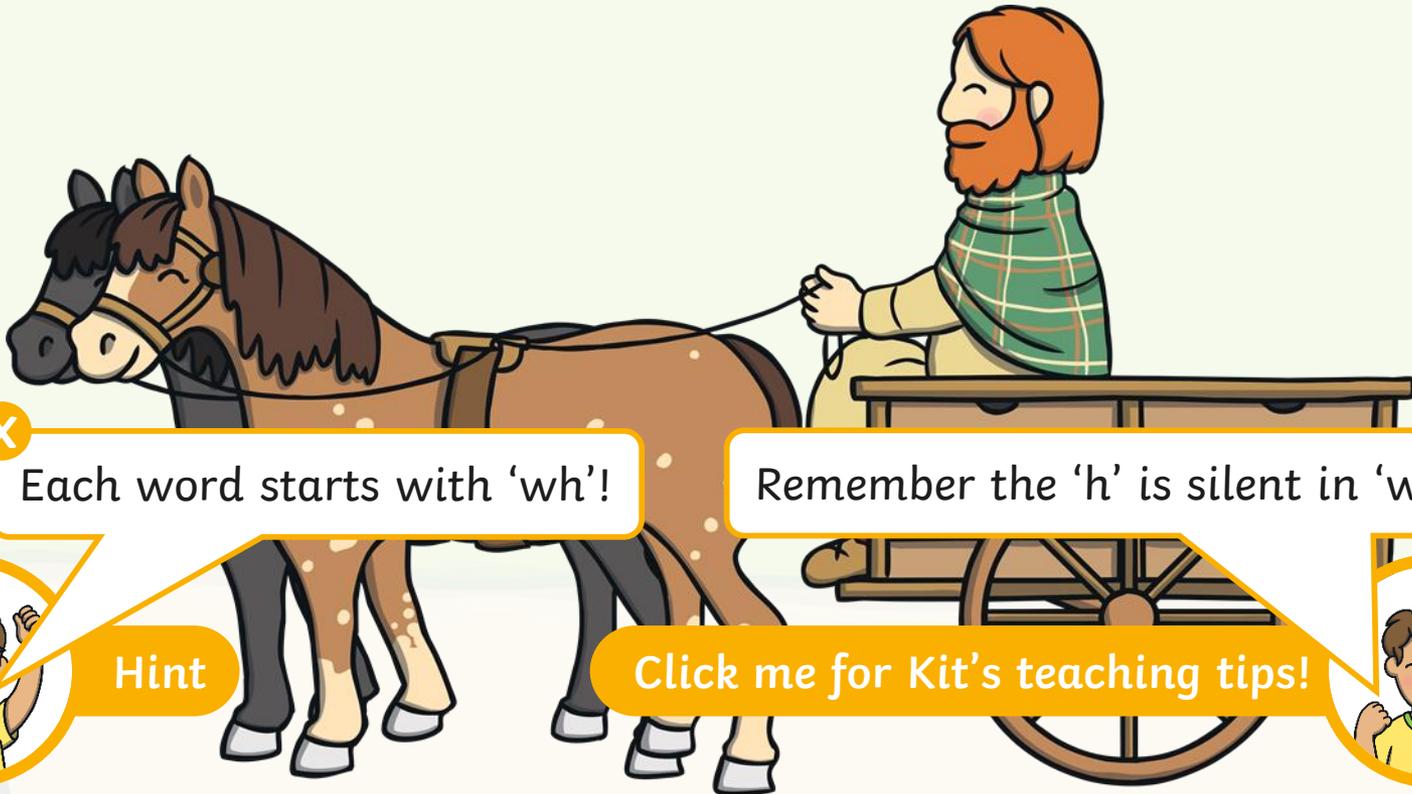

In the distance, Ben thought he could see a horse. As the moving animal got closer, Ben realised that there were actually two horses. The horses were pulling something on wheels. It was an old wooden cart.

Ben wagged his tail and jumped up in excitement when the horses drew closer. He dashed to greet them and dropped the watch on his way. Ben was happy to see some animals, particularly horses. He had been thinking about running alongside a horse. The magic watch had given him his wish!

Ben noticed some strange, round huts on a hill. These were thatched houses from the Iron Age. The magic watch had transported Ben back in time to about two thousand years ago!

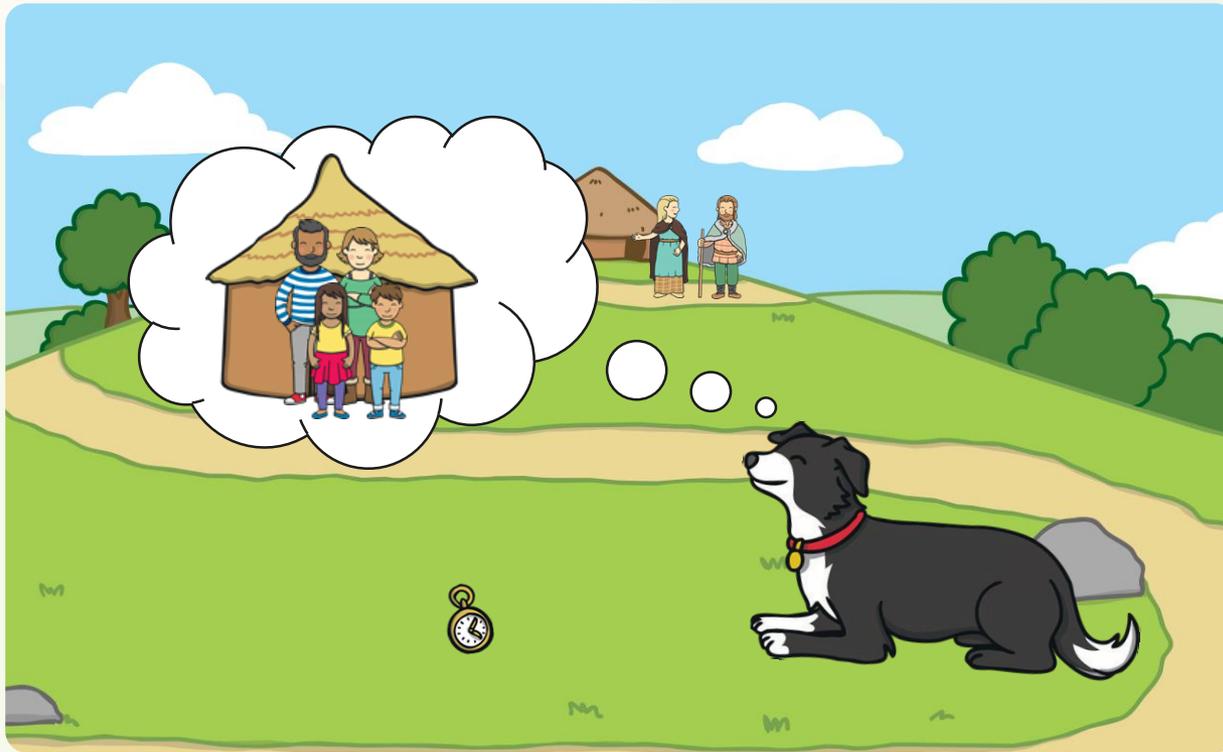

In the Iron Age people were called Celts. A metal called iron was discovered during this time in history. Families lived in small, round houses around a hill. They worked on their farms.

Ben noticed a lady coming towards him. The lady was wearing a long, floor-length dress with a shawl wrapped loosely around her shoulders.

“Who have we got here?” she said, patting Ben on the back. Ben started to whine.

The lady seemed kind, however Ben wished she was a familiar face. He missed the family, particularly Kit and Sam. He wished he was back at home in his house. Suddenly a large, white dog appeared. Ben and the dog sniffed at each other. Then, both dogs barked in a friendly way. 'Maybe this adventure isn't going to be so bad,' thought Ben, wagging his tail.

Today, we have learnt...
