Kit and Sam had had a fantastic time visiting the elephants and were now on their way to visit some dolphins. "I wonder where the magic map will take us this time," said Sam, excitedly.

Kit and Sam found themselves standing on a jetty in a beautiful bay. As they looked around, a dolphin suddenly popped up from under the water.

As they were photographing the dolphin, a lady with a clipboard walked over. “Hi there,” she said cheerfully. “Welcome to Florida Bay. I’m Steph. I guess you two are here to help us with our research.”

“Er,” said Sam, looking unsure.

“Great!” said the lady. “Come with me and we will get started.”

Steph the Scientist

As they walk, Steph marks some things off a list on the clipboard.
Click the speech bubble and write down what she says.

Check

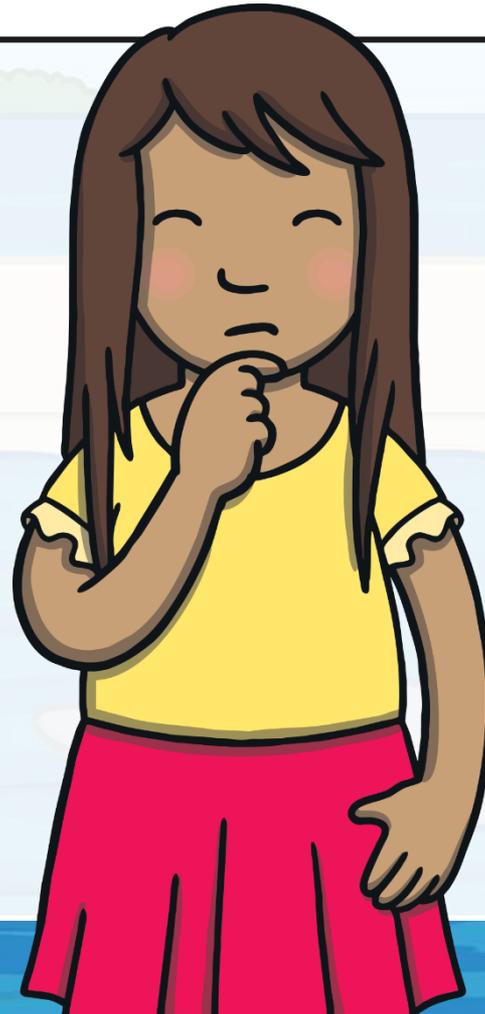

Before long, Kit, Sam and Steph were on a dolphin research boat, heading out to sea. “We need to collect information about the dolphins, then we can make graphs to show what we found,” said Steph.

“Kit, could you take photos of any dolphins that you see please?”

Sentence Time

What does Steph ask Sam to do? Write a sentence to match.

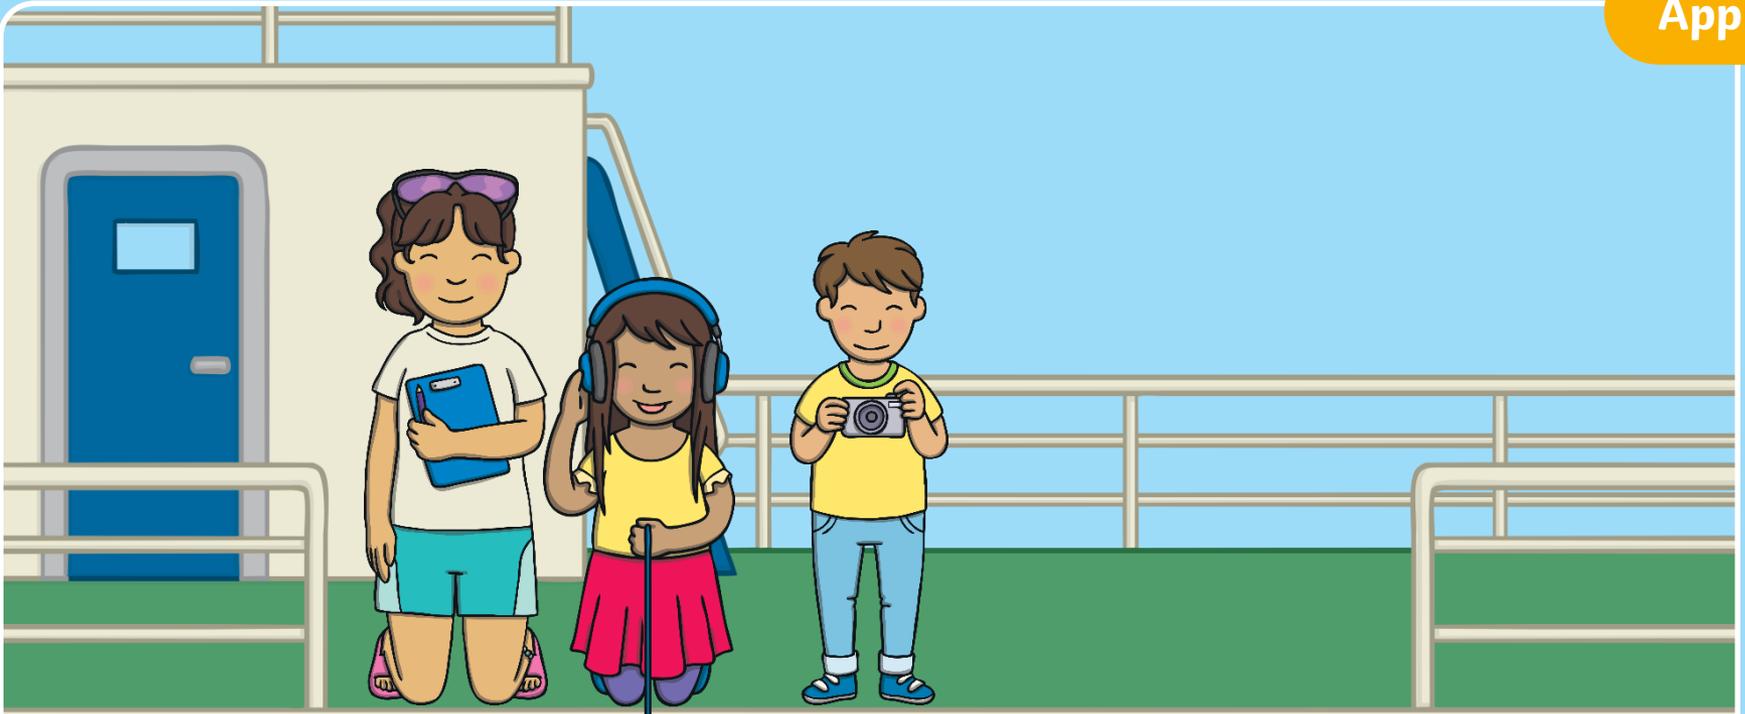

Hold the microphone
in the sea to hear the dolphins!

“Wow!” cried Sam. “I can hear the dolphins through this microphone!”

Steph smiled. “It is called chattering. Just like when we talk to each other, it seems that dolphins do, too.”

“Amazing,” said Sam. “I can’t wait to write all about them!”

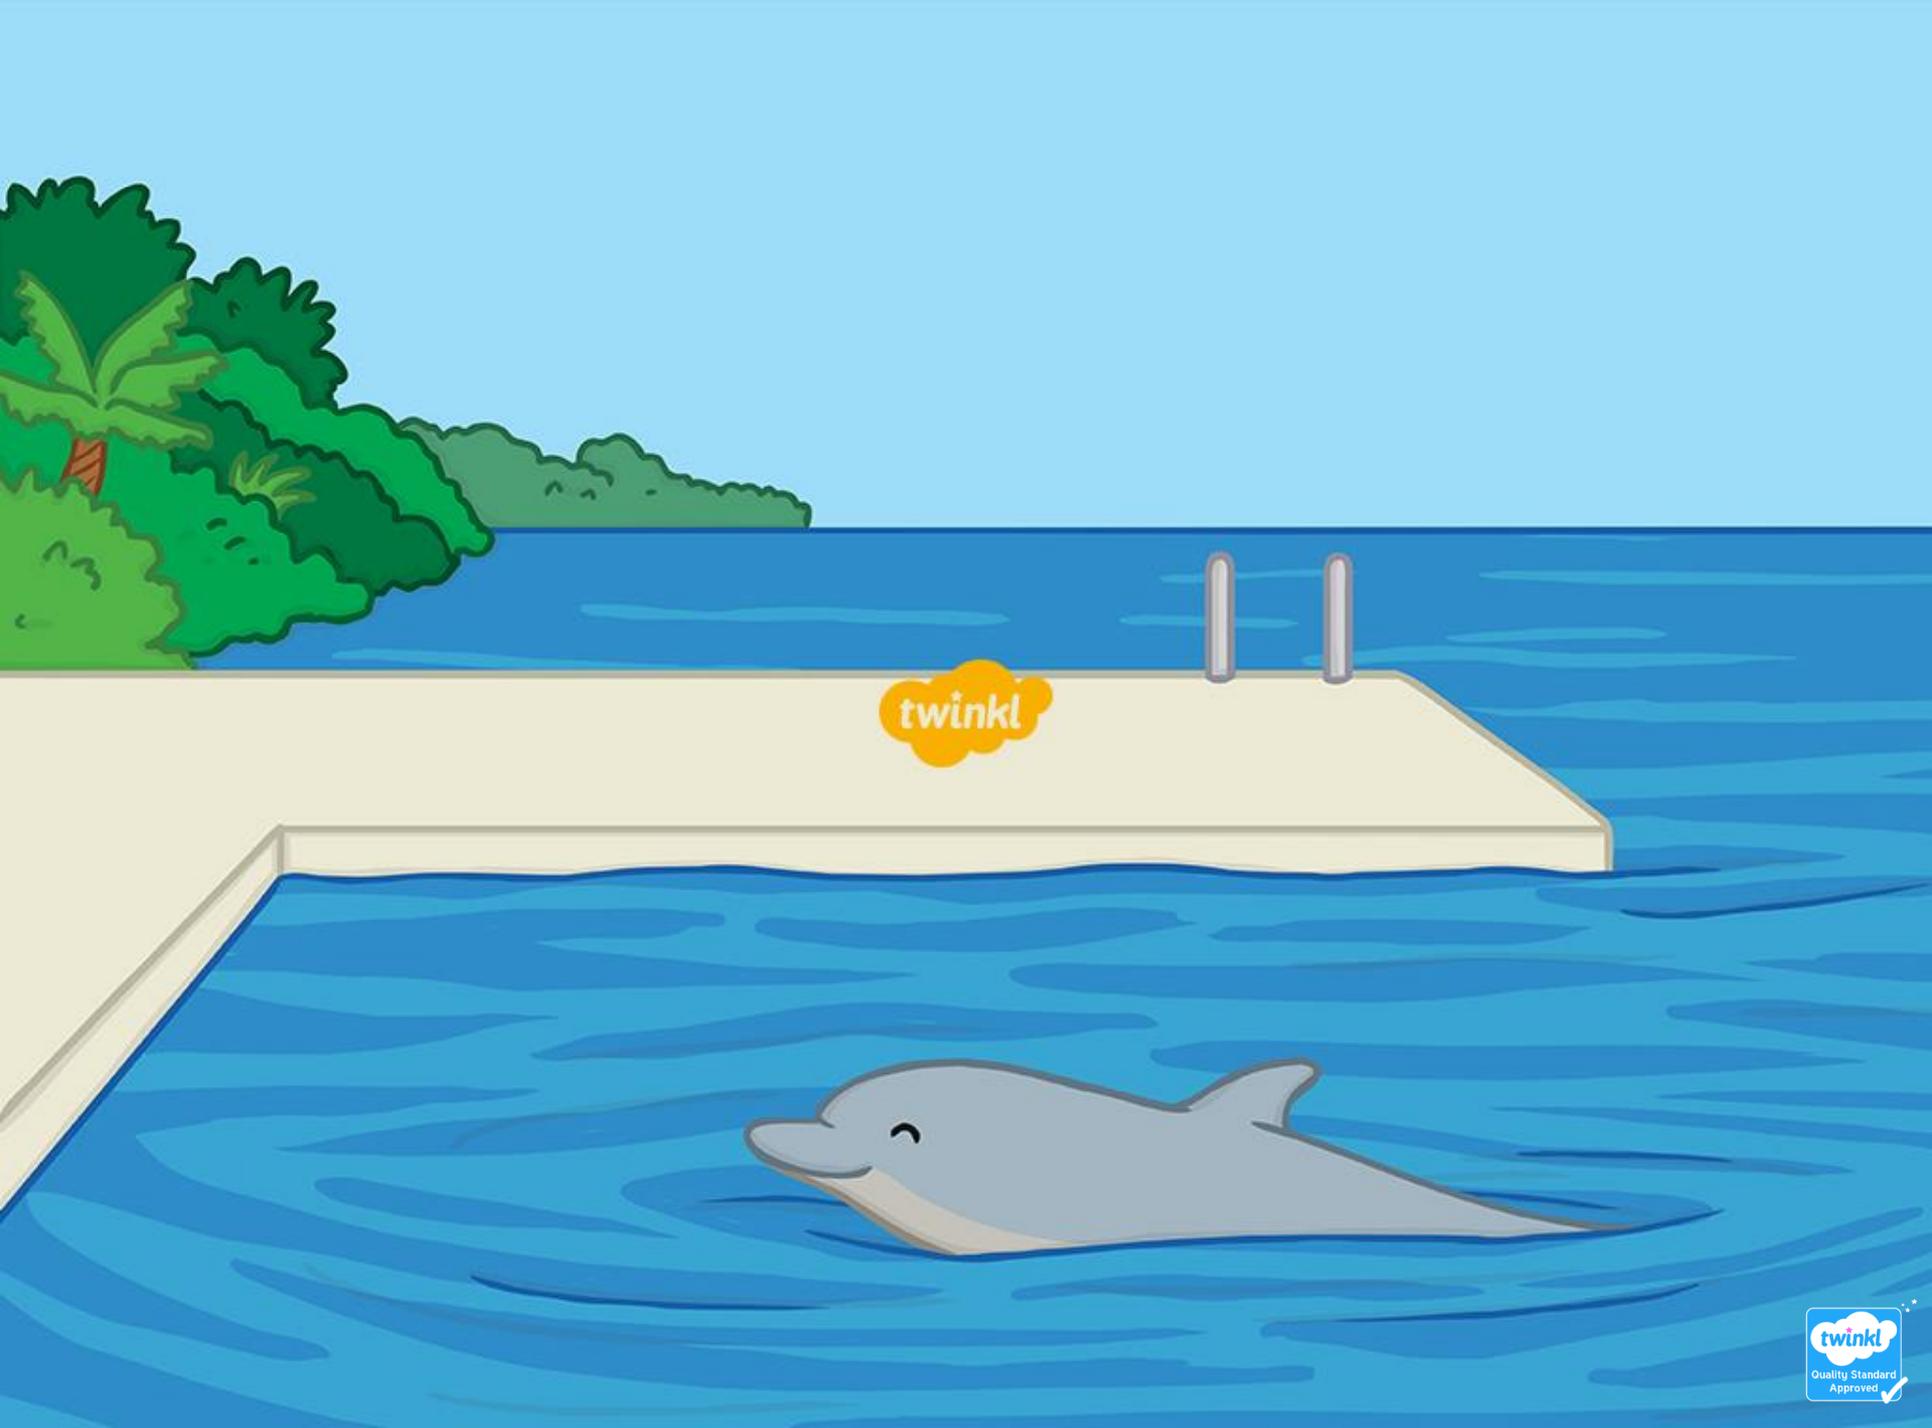

Kit and Sam were sad when their boat trip came to an end. “Thank you so much for your help today,” said Steph. “I’m going to go and use all this information to help me make some graphs. We will use what we found out to help keep the dolphins safe.”
“You have helped us a lot too, so thank you” smiled Sam. “Come on, Kit. We should go back and get writing our projects.”

Today, we have learnt...
