Kit was covered in blue paint! Sam, Gabi and Jake, who were working on the same table, had little splats of blue paint on their clothes. Kit started to panic because Mrs Tan was slowly walking in his direction.

Just as Mrs Tan approached Kit's table, Mr Adams shouted her name. Mrs Tan stopped and walked over to Mr Adams. Kit was relieved. He went over to the sink to get a paper towel. He hoped the paint might rub off.

As Kit rubbed the paint on his school top, it made even more mess!
Next, he started to rub the stains with a cloth – still no use!
“Kit!” shouted Mrs Tan. Kit turned around to face her.
Mrs Tan looked Kit up and down. She gasped, “Oh, it looks like we have an alien in our class!”

Kit wishes he was an alien! He could speak alien language and disappear!
Look at the words. Which is the correct spelling?

Unfornately, Mrs Tan was unable to get the paint off Kit's top. "Never mind," said Mrs Tan, "I'm sure it will come off in the wash."

Kit was relieved that Mrs Tan was not cross and that she had not shouted at him.

Sentence Time

Mrs Tan realises the time.
What does she tell the class to do? Write a sentence to match.

Please can you all stop what you have started because it is playtime.

At playtime, Kit and Jake pretended to be aliens. “My name is tik and this is ekaj!” Kit shouted across the playground to Sam and Gabi. The girls laughed.

After playtime, the children finished off their rock space art. Next, Mrs Tan read the class a story about an alien living on Earth. Then, the children had to write their own story about them being an alien living on Earth.

“If I was an alien and lived on Earth, I would eat all the treats I could!” exclaimed Kit to Jake.

“Anything would be better than space rocks!” laughed Jake.
